Oral Section

Q. 1) Read the given poem with proper rhythm, intonation and action. (05 Marks)

Children are going to school ...

Morning light spreads
over the earth.

Once again, the Sky bows his head in respect,
For children are going to school.

The Sun, after his morning dip in the river dressed up in his golden muslin turban waits and smiles on one side of the road,
For children are going to school.

Through the green-topped branches,
Breezes sing their songs of blessings.
Fragrant Flowers awaken the sleepy roads with their melodies.

At the corner of the lane,
the Peepal in his lush deep foliage
waves his hands
For children are going to school.

Angels of light have set out ...
Every road is a-gleam.
At this hour,
every particle of the earth
throbs like a mother's heart.
Time, sitting on an old roof,
flies pigeons in the sky.
For children are going to school.

- Translated from 'Bachche school ja rahe hain' By Nida Fazli

Q. 3) Read the following passage and do the activities.

In those days, travelling from China to India was not an easy task - one had to travel thousands of miles on foot or horseback, crossing deserts, crossing snow-clad mountains, crossing strange unfamiliar regions, using roads where bandits and robbers roamed – who would do it? But Yuan Chwang had a dream. He wanted to take Buddhist scriptures from India to his homeland China. It was like a pilgrimage to him.

Yuan Chwang undertook the long and difficult journey to follow his dream. For seventeen long years, he kept on travelling, suffering many hardships on the way. He travelled across the Gobi Desert, then along the Tian Shan mountain range and on and on along the Silk Road, through regions that are now Kyrgyzstan, Uzbekistan, Afghanistan and Pakistan before he came to India. In India, he travelled to many parts and gathered many important manuscripts.
